The General Ecology class, taught by Dr. Chris Sims, took a field trip to the Five Oaks Hunting Lodge near Humphrey, AR. The site has over 10,000 acres of privately owned timber and farm land located at the northeast corner of the Bayou Meto Wildlife Management Area. The staff goes to great length to provide the best habitat to support duck hunting in the area. Mr. Jody Pagan (a UAM alumnus) is the chief biologist at the site. He continually works to make sure that ducks have the proper plants for food and cover in the area.
